Bloomfield College

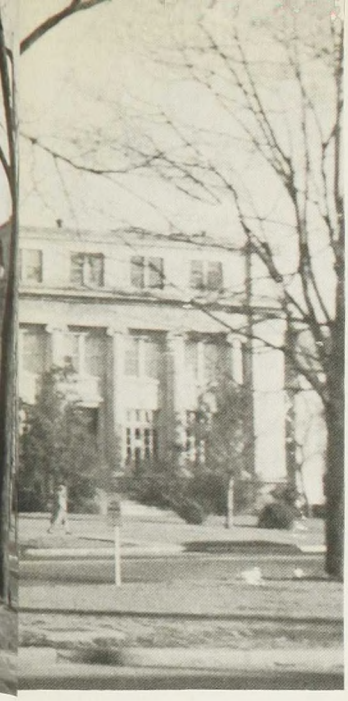
Foreword

Five years have passed since Dr. Frederick Schweitzer became Bloomfield's President and inaugurated an expansion program that has won for the College a reputable position among small colleges. The years have not been altogether rewarding, for progress has been slow and public response to Bloomfield's efforts has not been as enthusiastic as had been anticipated. But the College has moved forward. Many faithful friends have been made in these five years, and the operating budget has been balanced. Accreditation by an accrediting association is still being sought, but approval at an early date is now virtually assured. The Class of 1951 commends most highly the total expansion effort.



In Dedication . . .

MR. PAUL WAIVERS

To Mr. Paul Waivers of Florence, New Jersey, former Instructor in Mathematics and Physics, who was forced by illness to resign his teaching position in 1948, when we were Freshmen, the Class of 1951 gratefully dedicates this Saga. We remember Mr. Waivers for his encouragement at the time when we most needed it. As Freshmen in college we were often perplexed and even the smallest problems loomed large on our narrow horizons. At such times Mr. Waiver's friendly guidance strengthened our confidence. For his personal interest in our progress we shall always remember him.

Bloomfield

The students of urban Bloomfield College are not isolated from the outside world, but are in the very midst of normal activities, which offers them a broader view of all aspects of life and more adequately prepares them for stepping from college into community life.

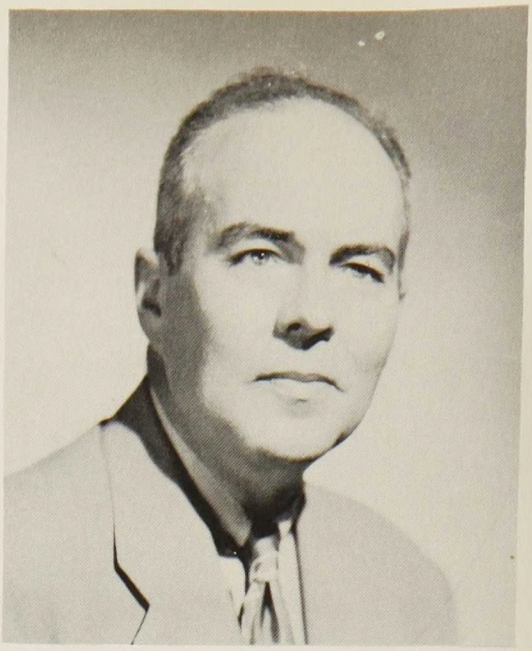
SEMINARY GRADUATES



A. ERNEST ACKERMAN

Mr. Ackerman had a long and successful background in sales and advertising before he decided to enter the ministry. He came to Bloomfield in 1948 after being taken under the care of Lima (Ohio) Presbytery. He has served the Grand Street Chapel in Rahway as Student Minister and the First Presbyterian Church in Metuchen as Student Assistant. In the summer of 1950 he went to Macon County Larger Parish in Missouri under the National Missions Board. Currently he is Director of Religious Education at the First Presbyterian Church in Paterson.

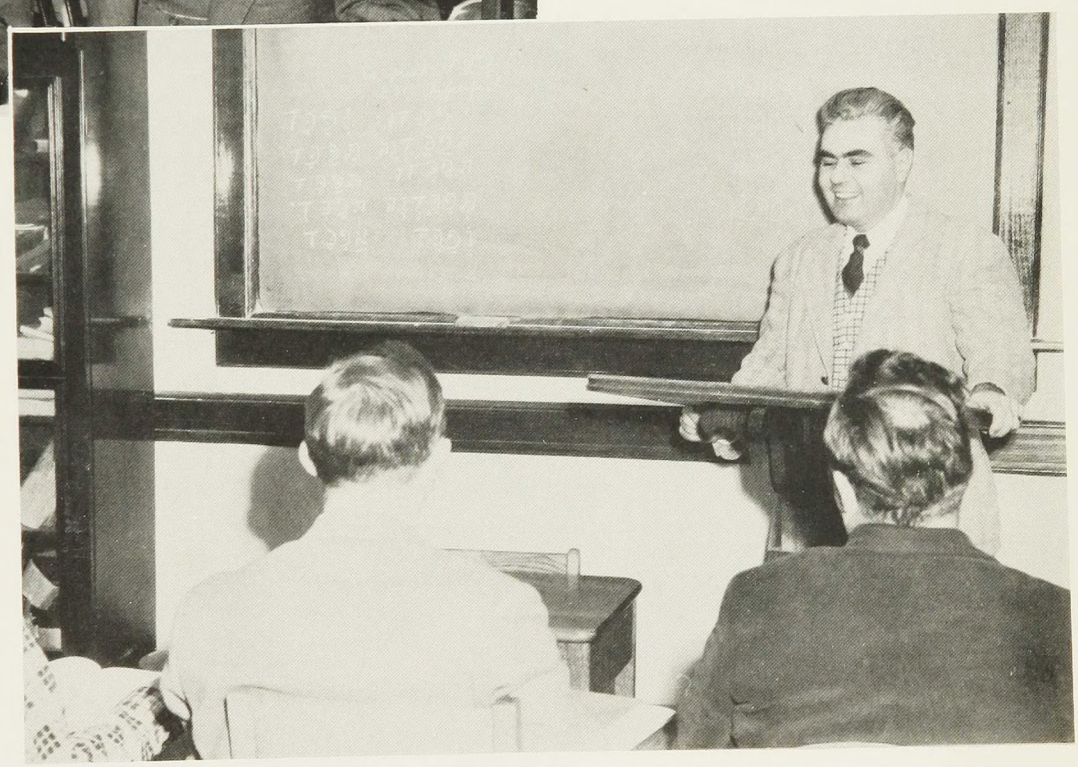
CONSTANTINE A. BALDASSARE

Mr. Baldassare has a singularly strong tie with Bloomfield. In 1943 he entered old Bloomfield Academy as a Senior, graduated in 1944, entered the College and graduated in 1948, and then entered the Seminary for his ministerial training. During the summers of 1946 and 1947 he worked under the Board of National Missions in the West Virginia Mountain project, and during his Seminary years he has been Assistant Pastor of Broome Street Tabernacle in New York. Currently he is the Student Minister of Waverly Park Presbyterian Church of Newark.

NICHOLAS NYARY

Prior to World War II, Dr. Nyary celebrated a score of years in private law practice in his native Budapest, Hungary, served the city as Corporation Counsel, and was legal advisor to a number of institutions there. Following German and Soviet occupation, he was forced to flee with his family and eventually found haven in America. The impact of his experience led him to Bloomfield Seminary and preparation for the ministry, and during these years he has utilized his background as Student Minister of one of the oldest Hungarian churches in Yonkers.

Besides President Schweitzer, there are three full-time professors in the Seminary: Dr. Frank Kovach, Professor in Church History; Dr. Samuel Haas, Professor in Hebrew and Old Testament; and Dr. Charles Deininger, Professor in Greek and New Testament.



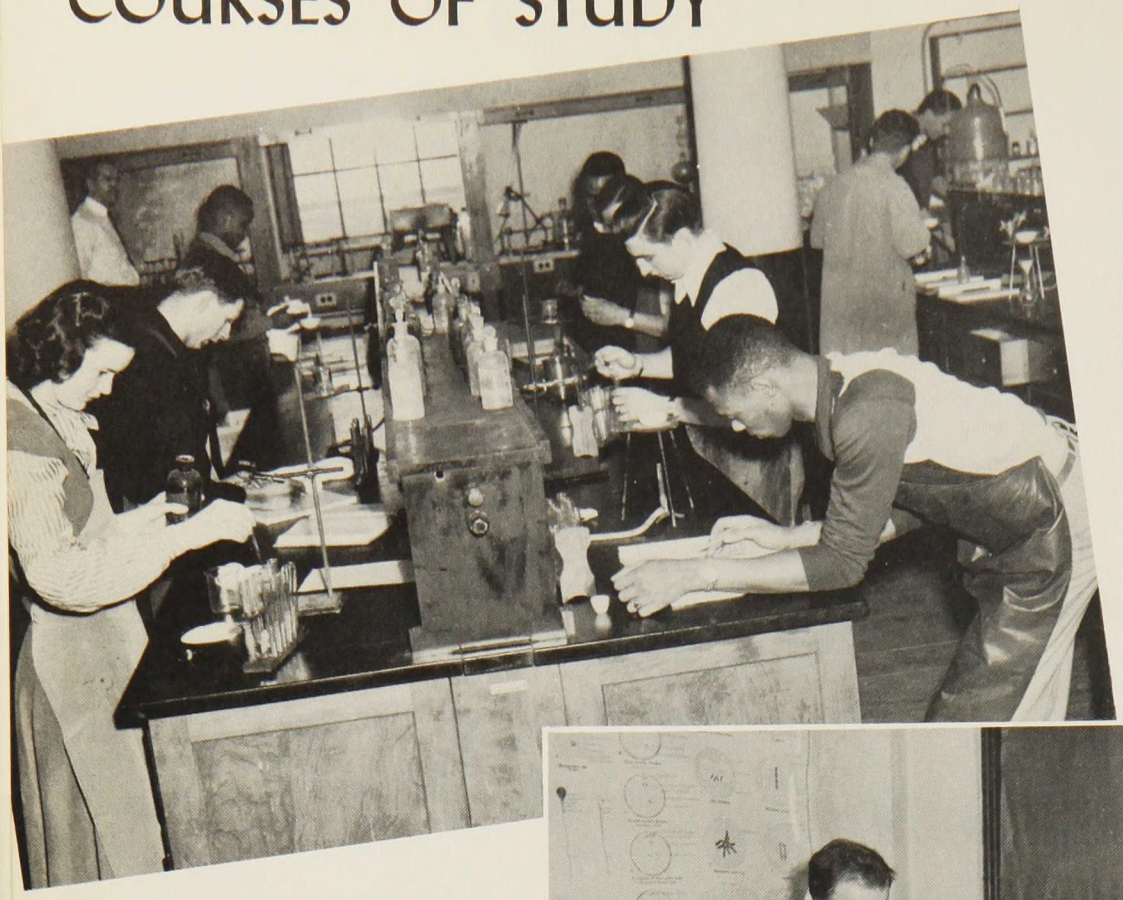
Professor Haas is shown here lecturing to a Middler class in Hebrew. All seminary classes are held in Knox Hall.

About Our Seminary

Like the Gospel of Christ which it teaches, Bloomfield Seminary is somewhat of a paradox: in the very attributes which seem to be its weaknesses lie its greatest strengths. We acknowledge with vicarious pride the tremendous strides made under the present Administration. But . . . well, there it is! We still are financially limited, comparatively unknown, and few in numbers.

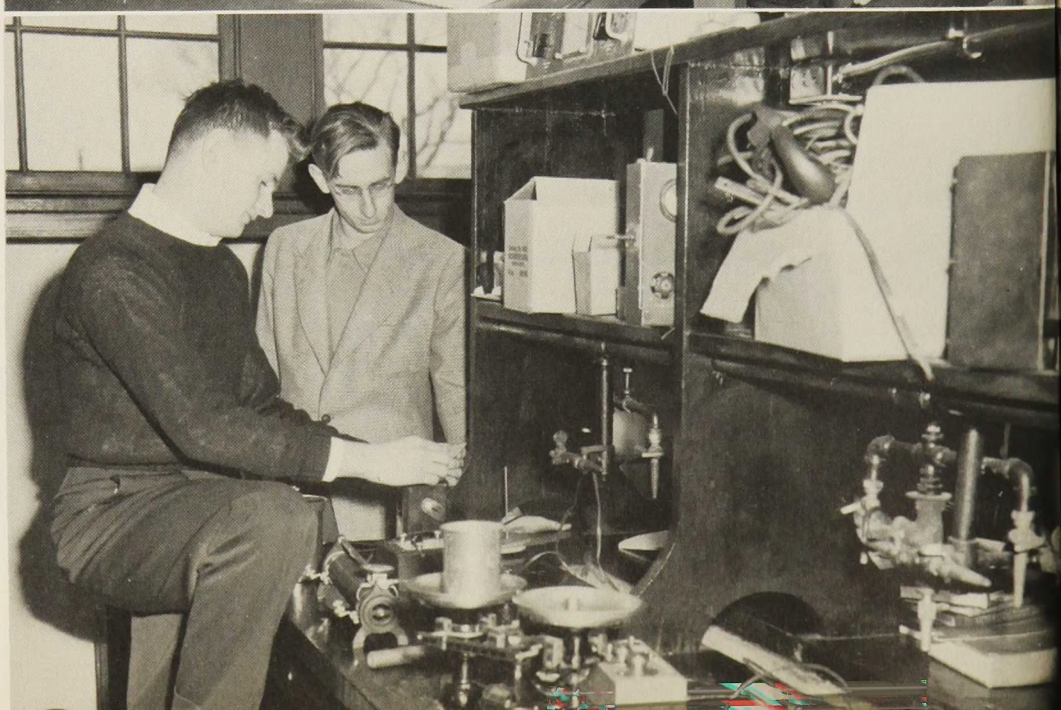
Consider! By our limitations, we recognize the goal to be within our own justifying selves. By our insignificance, our impact as well-trained graduates will be the greater. By our fewness, we receive a plus-plus enrichment from studying under scholars who already have added a premium value to their teaching, a practical experience of their own in the ministry. We are truly grateful for this solid and independent foundation for the years ahead.

COURSES OF STUDY



One of the first steps taken by Dr. Schweitzer and the Board to expand the College program was to renovate the chemistry lab. Here we see students enjoying the benefits of modern lab equipment in the laboratory set up on the second floor of Knox Hall in a room which formerly housed the College Library.

Richard Garth, Instructor in Biology, lectures to a lab section on the anatomy of a fish which may be spotted in the pan before Jerry Ialenti. The other students are Harold Montroy, Tony Chiodo, Paul Williams, and George DeLillo.



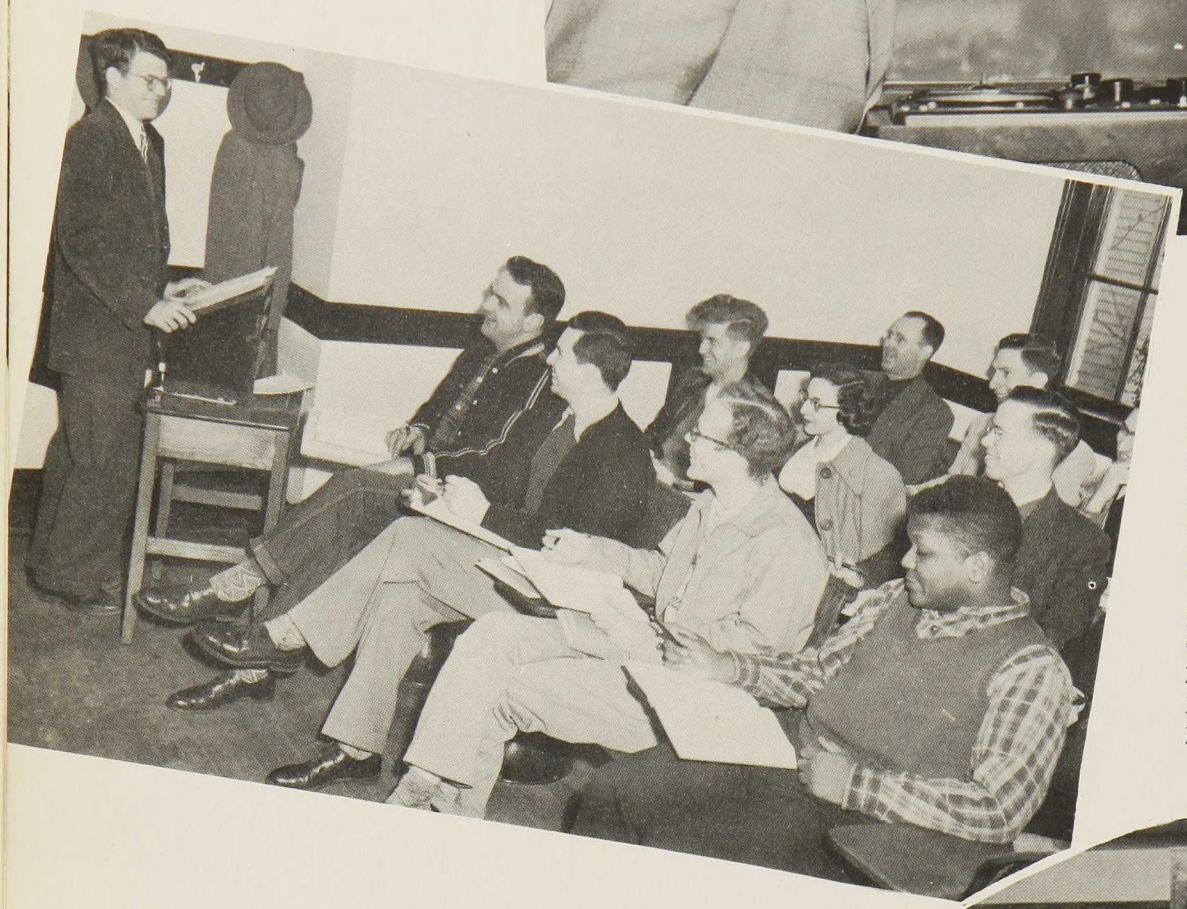
In the physics lab Bill Fitzsimmons talks over an experiment with a new student who entered the College for the first time at the start of the second term.

Professor Harry T. Taylor lectures on recent American history to a seminar for upperclassmen. History seminar courses were organized last year. All seminars are run on a term basis. In this class we see Bob Hoag, Harold Montroy, Walt Owens, Doug Bartlett, Ron Ossmann, and Joe Burrucker.

The big classroom on the first floor of Oakland Hall was recently renovated and put to use as a classroom for business courses. Here Mr. Woodbridge, our new Business Instructor, helps Lou Furnari with a problem in accounting.

For the second year courses in psychology are being offered at Bloomfield and are among the most popular courses. Here Mr. C. James Herrick, Instructor, lectures to a class in general psych on the subject of learning. The College now offers a major in psychology-philosophy, and plans to offer a major in psychology alone within the next few years.

Speech Instructor Ralph Craw gives pointers to Maria Neves from Portugal about the use of the microphone in making a recording of her voice. Miss Neves is enrolled in Mr. Craw's course in speech for foreign students. This special course in speech is but one of Bloomfield's many efforts to help the foreign-born student orient himself.



Wise-cracking Bob Gillespie has just made a joke which even Sociology Instructor Ralph Calkins enjoys. Informality in classes is typical at Bloomfield. This group of sociology students includes, besides Bob Gillespie, Jim Powl, Bob Hoag, Grant Williams, John Wallace, Lou Cupo, Martin Buss, Rev. Harold Damon, Ben Blumel, and John Chironna.

Bloomfield emphasizes the physical well-being of its students. Calisthenics are a regular part of all gym classes. Two years of gym are required of all students, and in addition a term of hygiene is required. The athletic program is under the direction of Wilbur G. Renken.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

The Class of 1951 has played a vital part in Bloomfield's expansion program. In cooperation with the Class of 1950, several of our members have been instrumental in organizing and expanding the program of student activities. We have made significant contributions to the work of the B.C.S.A. and the Minuteman, and to the organization of the Campus Store and snack bar. The Class as a whole has made a splendid scholastic record, four of our members having consistently won honor scholarships. Our only regret as we leave is that we have not contributed as much as we have gained.

1947 and the beginning of our college careers seems a decade off. The only clear impressions remaining to many of us are those of yellow initiation derbies and Professor Taylor's philosophical flights of fancy in the curriculum survey course given for the last time that year.

By our Sophomore year our Class had established a monopoly in athletic talent, with at least ten of us, including Fred Jackson, Pete Thomas, and Jerry Ialenti, appearing regularly in intercollegiate basketball and baseball. Even more turned out for intramural scraps in touch football, volleyball, basketball and softball. Athletics have truly played an integral part in the training of our class members.

Our Junior year was marked by our contribution of an outstanding leadership in school life. Dick Myer and Ben Blumel were President and Treasurer of the B.C.S.A., and Bob Hoag was both Editor-in-chief of the Minuteman and Moderator of the Pre-theologs. Most other time-consuming key positions—in the Pre-theologs, on the Minuteman staff, and in the school store—were also occupied by members of the Class.

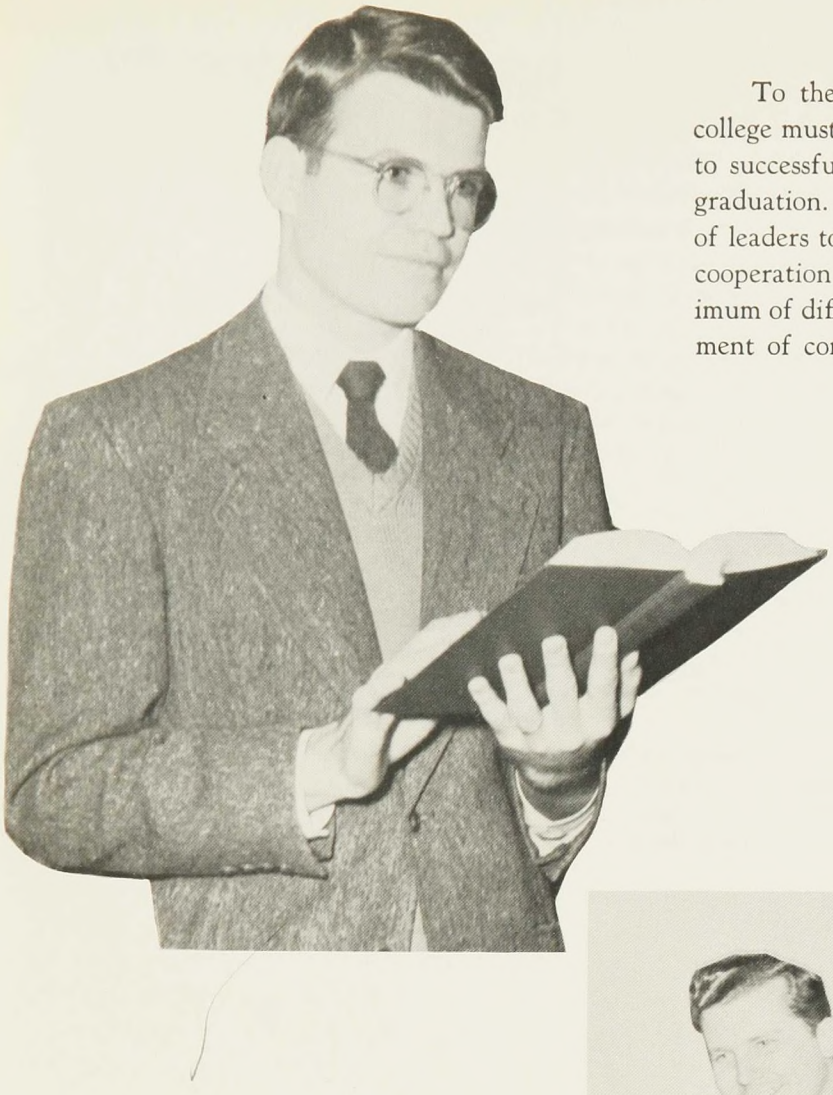
The years 1950 and '51 have seen no slackening in the Class pace. Activities have increased, with the publishing of the Saga and the planning for commencement adding to the pleasant burden. Ken Hampson has headed the B.C.S.A., and Walt Fuhrmann has managed the Campus Store and social center at Dikovics House. Martin Buss has served as the Minuteman's Managing Editor. Ben Blumel has been Head Manager of the Basketball Team, and Fred Jackson and Jerry Ialenti have been the school's star basketball players.

After 1951? Our Class has been sandwiched in between two world crises, but there is no indication that it will be another "lost generation." The veterans and family men among us have had their goals fixed from the beginning. About half the class members will go on to theological seminaries to prepare for the work of the ministry. These dedicated students point up the goal which every member of the Class will undertake to reach by one means or another—the goal of service.

SENIOR FAREWELL SONG

Our beloved Bloomfield College, we sing thy praises high.
With heavy hearts and tearful eyes on parting we do sigh.
We'll ne'er forget your colors, maroon and shining gold,
Your helpful inspirations, which we'll forever hold.
In our fondest recollections of school days now gone by,
You shall stand undaunted through the years and truth exemplify!

The Senior Farewell Song was written a year ago at the request of the Class of 1950. The words are by Ariel Verdesi of the Class of 1953. The music was arranged by Phyllis Gomberg, also of the Class of '53.



To their officers and sponsor the Senior Class in any college must look for unity and direction in carrying through to successful completion the many activities connected with graduation. The Class of 1951 was fortunate in its selection of leaders to choose men who have been able to inspire active cooperation in all class members to accomplish with a minimum of difficulty the purchase of a class gift and the arrangement of commencement activities.

BLOOMFIELD COLLEGE STUDENT ASSOCIATION

The students of Bloomfield College can look at the B.C.S.A. with pride as they view its accomplishments during the past four years. Today we find the Student Association backing financially the sports program of the College, the Minuteman, the Saga, the Choir, and various other clubs. The Association has worked for the opening of student lounges and a parking area for the commuters. Four years have been spent in organizing and opening a Campus Store and Student Center. This year the Association's efforts were rewarded by the opening of a store, a snack bar, and a social center in newly acquired Dikovics House. All this has not been accomplished by any small group, but by the consistent effort of a large number of students interested in the advancement of the B.C.S.A. The Association's achievements have won the respect of the students, faculty, and Administration.

Dear B.J.,
Here's wishing you all the best. I hope our friendship will remain in fact.
Best of Luck
Sincerely,
Phyllis

Shown below is a typical gathering of Bloomfield students for a regular meeting of the B.C.S.A. Ken Hampson, the Association's President, is on the rostrum.

RONALD B. OSSMANN
Editor-in-chief

THE MINUTEMAN — THE SAGA

The Minuteman, student newspaper, entered its fourth year with Ronald Ossmann, '52, as Editor. The Minuteman was published ten times during this college year, and for the first time holiday issues were printed in color. Editorials discussing pertinent questions about school life and calling for candid appraisal of problems were of special interest, along with a new feature column written by Bob Holley. The Minuteman staff members gained useful experience in writing and learned the value of cooperation, which is always essential if deadlines are to be met on time.

The Saga staff has worked hard and many long hours to produce this yearbook. The Editor is grateful to the staff, to the Faculty Adviser, and to the many others who contributed of their time and effort to make this yearbook project a success. Without the cooperation of the entire Senior Class, the Saga could not have been published. The business staff had to meet expenses of well over $1,600, and a voluminous amount of work was demanded of the literary and photography departments to fill the 68 pages of text. The completed book is its own reward.

RALPH N. CALKINS
Faculty Adviser

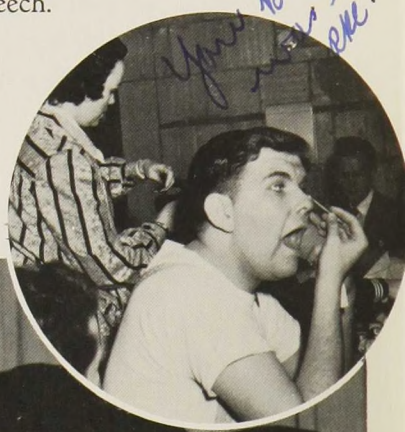
The Bloomfield production of "Our Town" presented in leading roles: Doris Coleman as Rebecca Gibbs, Ed Ross as Dr. Gibbs, Lou Cupo as Mrs. Gibbs, Dick Myer as George Gibbs, Bob Holley as the Stage Manager, Joy Aamot as Emily Webb, Dolly Jean Campen as Mrs. Webb, and Ben McLaughlin as Mr. Webb.

THORNTON WILDER'S "OUR TOWN"

One of the College's most rewarding activities this year was the presentation of Thornton Wilder's Our Town, a play relating incidents in the lives of two families living in Grovers Corners, New Hampshire, a small town typically American in all aspects of its life. The audience follows the play's characters through the joys and sorrows of their lives to learn of the beauty and depth of common experiences.

Our Town is unusual in its presentation for its lack of scenery and properties. Next to The Skin of Our Teeth, Our Town was one of Wilder's most popular Broadway plays. It was written and produced in 1938. The play was produced at Bloomfield by the Class of 1952 under the direction of Ralph Craw, Instructor in Speech.

Behind the scenes before the play



One of the most moving scenes of "Our Town" was the graveyard scene in the third act. Here the living are watched by the dead.

PRE-THEOLOG CLUB

The objective of the Pre-theolog Club is to promote the spiritual interests of candidates for full time Christian service. This objective is realized through the on-campus program of the club and through Gospel team visitations to area churches. For the first time this Spring a one-day retreat was held for the entire group, with Dr. Raymond Lindquist as leader.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

The Bloomfield Christian Fellowship welcomes as members all students who are anxious to make Jesus more real in their lives. The group meets informally once a week to discuss the meaning of Bible passages and to sing Gospel songs, and prayer meetings are held daily following lunch. The Fellowship is unofficially associated with the International Inter-Varsity Fellowship.

COLLEGE FORUM

The former History Club this year became the College Forum, whose objective is to foster student interest in contemporary affairs. The program included an afternoon's visit to the United Nations, lectures by guest speakers, group discussions, and a series of talks on present-day affairs in England, China, Russia, France, and America by Mr. Keith Eubank, Instructor in history.

CAMPUS STORE

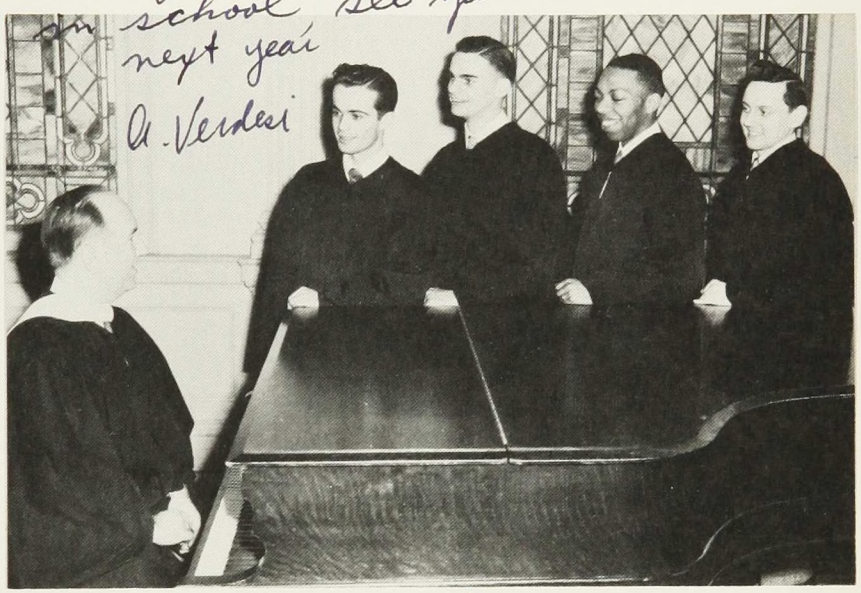
The Campus Store staff is headed by Walter Fuhrmann, who has been largely instrumental in setting up the store and snack bar in Dikovics House. The Campus Store sells school supplies and Bloomfield sweaters and jackets. The snack bar provides a menu including soup, sandwiches, milk, coffee, and cakes. Each member of the store staff works in the basement supply store or snack bar about five hours a week.

A group of commuters is here patronizing the snack bar in Dikovics House. The snack bar is connected with the Campus Store, of which Walter Fuhrmann is the manager. In this picture Walt is pouring a cup of coffee for a customer. Those on the other side of the counter include E. Smith, A. McDivitt, H. Sonnenberg, D. Coleman, J. Tosh, and R. Miller.

MUSIC

No campus group has contributed more to the spreading of the Bloomfield story than the College Choir. The choral group this year sang in many area churches, at Kresge's Department Store in Newark, and over radio station WNJR. In addition they have been heard in chapel programs and at special college functions, such as the Founders' Day Convocation. In a typical program the Choir includes solo numbers and numbers by the College Quartet.

Choir Director Russell Hayton



The College Quartet is composed of regular members of the Choir. Shown here with Mr. Hayton, they are Ariel Verdesi, bass; Ralph Riehle, baritone; John Salmon, first tenor; and Donald Pepper, second tenor.

SPANISH-ITALIAN CLUB

FRENCH CLUB

CHEERLEADERS

BASKETBALL

Basketball is still the College's leading competitive sport. During the past four years, under Wilbur Renken's coaching, the calibre of play has been remarkably improved, and despite our losses, the team continues to exhibit a spirit of relentless drive. We are rightfully proud of that spirit and of the team's good sportsmanship.

The Varsity Team and Managers: Chironna (Assistant Manager), Vander Hey, Grant, DeLuca (Captain), Clarizio, Ross, Welsh (Assistant Manager), Coach Renken, Blumel (Manager), LoGuidice, Crincoli, Zaccara, Ialenti, Furdock, Colon (Assistant Manager), Furnari (Assistant Manager).

BASEBALL

Baseball, a sports newcomer to Bloomfield in 1949, is gradually gaining a popularity equal to that heretofore reserved for basketball. At the same time our players are increasing in ability; eight of last year's letter-men returned to form the nucleus of this year's team. As a member of the New Jersey Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Bloomfield faces many colleges that vastly outstrip it in size.

Forecast

The Class of 1951 has played a vital part in a significant period in the history of Bloomfield College. We have seen the College revitalized to the place where it can rightly assume a position of respect among American colleges

But we hesitate to make optimistic predictions for the future of the College in the face of the serious situation that now exists. We believe that Bloomfield in the next five years will face its most critical hour. More than ever she will need the support of her alumni and friends.

The Class of 1951 leaves the College with the promise that we will not forget our Alma Mater in the dark days that lie just ahead, but will do whatever we can to help her weather the storm, for she has truly merited our devotion.

Lux in tenebris, Alma Mater,
Built upon the rock eternal,
Fountain rock of living water,
Kindled by the Light supernal,
With unceasing Power increasing,
Shed abroad thy radiant light.

THE MAKING OF A COLLEGE DIPLOMA

A COLLEGE DIPLOMA is a unit of value. Theoretically, a diploma that stands for a given baccalaureate degree is equal as a measure of educational attainment . . . to any other diploma standing for the same degree, from any other college.

Actually, one diploma's worth of college education is not uniform . . . from one possessor to another, or from one college to another. The real value becomes apparent only by examining what lies behind it. For the graduates of Bloomfield College, the making of a college diploma includes:

High scholastic standards—meaning continued insistence upon individual effort to the full extent of one's ability to learn.

Emphasis upon American principles of living together—meaning continued insistence that students must know, understand, and accept the facts of American Constitutional government.

Indoctrination in the Christian Gospel—meaning continued insistence upon the employment of the Gospel message as a source of moral strength and inspiration.

Maintaining at full "par value" the educational worth of its college diploma is a responsibility which Bloomfield College takes very seriously. To fall short in this responsibility is to break faith . . . with all the graduates that have gone before.

At the same time, and for the very same reasons, every Bloomfield alumnus should accept with his diploma a like responsibility . . . to help maintain "par value." For the final determinant of that value, after all, is the way in which all the graduates do their assigned tasks in the world beyond the campus.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS—BLOOMFIELD COLLEGE.
